"Uncanny Comforts"
Elithas Gallery, London
20th–28th February 2025

The works made for Uncanny Comforts reveal a world tucked away from public view—imagined interiors where plants and animals stand in for human experiences. The subjects carry a sense of existential loneliness, yet this solitude is softened by humor, playful textures, and a saturated palette.

A pink-feathered bird, scattered fruit, a cherry dish alongside tropical flowers—each element draws the viewer into the melancholic undertone of the imagery. At the same time, the vibrant colors and expressive brushwork push against this darkness, undermining its weight. This self-aware melodrama reflects an ambivalent view of existence—a space where laughter and sorrow coexist.

Unique digital prints

These digital paintings took shape over three months of AI experimentation, where I trained models using a curated archive of research visuals—blending imagery from historical iconography, celebrity culture, and references from fashion. The final compositions were then meticulously refined in Photoshop and Procreate, merging algorithmic exploration with human touch to bring the vision to life.
